James R. Duke

THE DUKE ENDOWMENT

WHEN: June 5, 2018 from 8:30am – 12pm

WHERE: McKimmon Conference and Training Center
1101 Gorman St., Raleigh, NC 27606

WHAT: NC Department of Health and Human Services, Prevent Child Abuse NC, NC Child, and The Duke Endowment are partnering to host a kickoff informational session for the Family First Prevention Services Act (FFPSA). This is an opportunity to learn, ask questions and engage in the planning process of this important legislation.

WHY: FFPSA is the most sweeping legislation impacting child welfare services in the past 10 years. It is important that child welfare stakeholders are part of the planning process as we discuss what these changes could mean for families and children in North Carolina.

WHO: We enthusiastically invite our child welfare agency leaders and stakeholders to join us in learning more about how we can provide enhanced stability and services to prevent children from entering foster care. The FFPSA also has other important provisions that support the safety, permanence and well-being of children who do enter care, and restructures how we can collectively meet their complex needs.

SPEAKERS INCLUDE:

- Michael Becketts, Assistant Secretary for Human Services, NCDHHS
- Lisa Cauley, Deputy Director for Child Welfare Services, NCDHHS
- Dan Duffy, President and CEO, Prevent Child Abuse America
- Donna Fayko, President, North Carolina Association of County Directors of Social Services
- Rob Geen, Director of Policy Reform and Advocacy, Annie E. Casey Foundation
- Sharon Hirsch, President and CEO, Prevent Child Abuse NC
- Michelle Hughes, Executive Director, NC Child
- Tamika Williams, Associate Director, Child Care, Duke Endowment
